

LEFT CHANCE OF $1,000 BEHIND.

Patron at the Princess Theatre Didn't Seem to Worry a Bit About the $996 that was Coming to Him.

BUT TREASURER FRETTER.

He Was So Distracted that He Advertised for the Owner of the Money to Call, and a Great Weight is Lifted Because It Was Claimed.

For this week at least, Charles Zimmerman, treasurer of the Princess Theatre, is entitled to double pay. The salary of the press agent is coming to him, for the regular fiction writer has been allowed to go "anywhere and take it easy" in the last row of the orchestra chairs, while the man who ordinarily confines his efforts to counting money, has branched out into puffing at the "dream pipe."

A "personal" in a morning paper bearing an absent-minded gentleman to come to the box-office and get the change out of a $1,000 bill eloquently testified to the fact that Zimmerman's small about Mr. Zimmerman's method.

Happily, the fearful anxiety he has felt for the careless man's money has been relieved.

"He came last night and got his change," said Mr. Zimmerman, with a glad sigh, to-day.

"What was his name?"

"I don't know," replied the trusty treasurer.

"How did you know the money belonged to him, then?"

"Oh, by his seat coupon," was the ready explanation. "And then I remembered his face."

"It must have been an open face," was suggested.

"Yes, it was," agreed Zimmerman. "He seemed to be a very nice man, but careless, my!"

"Well, the whole story," said Zimmerman, straightening a stack of silver dollars. "He drifted in Wednesday night and, asking for a couple of seats, took a roll of bills out of his pocket, and sorting out one remarked:

"I'm afraid you can't change this, but it's the smallest I've got."

"Well, I should say not," I said, when I saw it was a thousand-dollar bill. "But I can get it changed," I added, "and you can come out between the acts and get what's coming to you."

"All right," he said, and in he went with a nice-looking lady.

Forgot the Change.

"I sent up to the Herald Square and got the bill changed. The man didn't come for his change after the first act. After the second act I started to take the $996 to him—but he was so busy talking to the lady that I hated to disturb them. The first thing I knew the show was over and all the people had left the theatre. I had just gone down and put an ad in the paper last night, when the man sauntered into the lobby. He said the little matter of the change had quite slipped his mind the night before. I apologized for giving him 250 one-dollar bills as the price of the change."

"That's all right," he said, stuffing away the swag. "Even dollar bills have their uses."

"The lady, who was still with him, looked bored. 'Have you got your change?' she asked."

"Yes," he answered, going south with the last bank note.

"Well, she said, 'let's walk over and buy an automobile before they're all gone.'"

"The man lifted his hat and thanked me for my thoughtfulness, and then they went out and were swallowed up in the passing throng. As I saw them leave I felt just as though a great load had been lifted from my mind. Have a cigarette?"

MOST DARING OF ALL THE LOOPERS

Paul Castagnita Combines Shooting the Chutes and Looping the Loop into One Blood-Stirring Act.

DIVES AT END OF RIDE.

Bicycle riders who have won fame and fortune by thrilling vast audiences with their dare-devil ride around a loop the loop will please retire to the extreme rear and be seated.

Here is a rider who is risking his life every day by not only looping the loop, but also by shooting the chutes at the same time and without even an audience to bestow enraptured plaudits.

Paul Castagnita is the name of the person practicing the perilous feat at Luna Park, Coney Island, preparing himself for a terrific bid for fame and popularity and the acclaim of a thrilled public.

Castagnita is possessed of almost superhuman nerve. Nothing seems to daunt him, and the many falls and hairbreadth escapes that he has ever been through during his trying ordeal of rehearsal seem to add but to his stock of courage.

He has both looped the loop and shot the chutes on his bicycle, but this is the first attempt that has ever been made to do the two acts simultaneously.

The terrifying ride will occupy less than six seconds to complete.

The start is made at the top of the loop, which is but 2 feet 6 inches wide and has an extreme height of 30 feet from the lowest portion of the loop.

After the curve is made the wheel runs up a second incline and the daring Castagnita dives over the handlebars of his bike into the lagoon facing the Court of Honor.

EMMA WAS OUT, STRANGER GOT IN

Burglar Scare Follows Diplomatic Tactics of Mamma Federal, Who Planned to Save Daughter from Papa's Wrath.

LEFT FRONT DOOR OPEN.

When Girl Got Home She Found a Man in Her Room, Who, After Up-roar and Police Call, Proved He Was Neighbor Who Made Mistake

Rudolph Federal, a rich iron manufacturer, of Clifton, Staten Island, is a stern papa. He has a seventeen-year-old daughter, Miss Emma, who loves fun. He also has an indulgent wife, who sympathizes with her daughter's love of fun.

Sometimes Miss Emma goes to parties and does not come home as early as Mr. Federal thinks she ought to. Her diplomatic mother has her hands full arranging things so that there may be peace in the house. Last night Miss Emma went out with a young man. Her father, thinking that she had returned, retired early.

This morning, however, Miss Emma did not get up. Her father, who had left the front door unlocked, that Miss Emma might get in without ringing the bell.

A little after 11 o'clock she and the young man came. They parted at the door and the young girl crept up to her room. As she softly opened the door she saw in the light coming from the window the figure of a man sitting on the bed. All fear of her stern parent was submerged at the sight of the intruder. She screamed and fled to her parents' room.

Mr. Federal hopped out of bed, ran upstairs, saw the man and ran down again. He dashed into Miss Emma's room shouting, "This is my daughter's room. Get out!" This aroused Neighbor August Collinmeyer, who offered to go for a policeman, while Mr. Federal stayed behind to see that the thief did not get away.

Neighbor Collinmeyer ran down Maple avenue until he met Neighbors Keesley and Edwards coming home. He told them what was up and ran on. Keesley followed him to the Federal house, and the three men then decided to board the intruder in Miss Emma's room.

They rushed in mass into the room, grabbed the man on the bed and began shaking him. This was, for he had his shirt half way over his head. A light was struck and when the stranger could get his shirt off entirely they recognized him as Robert Stewart, another neighbor, employed as a bookkeeper in the ship building firm of Sandford & Rose.

With some embarrassment of speech he explained that he had been out until he met Neighbors Keesley and Edwards coming home. He told them what was up and ran on. Keesley followed him to the Federal house, and the three men then decided to board the intruder in Miss Emma's room.

His apology was accepted and he was being escorted out when two policemen arrived in tow of Keesley and Edwards. They, too, accepted the apology and the incident was closed.

Miss Emma hopes her father will respect this decision.

OWES HIS BRUISES TO HIS "BEAUTY."

Dr. Clemens, Seeking to Restrain His Hen-Hunting Dog, Is Badly Beaten.

As a balm for his wounded feelings and battered features Dr. Alexander H. Clemens, of No. 685 St. Mark's avenue, Brooklyn, is going to sue for $50,000 from John Jones, a retail groceryman, and his son, John Jr., who he says struck him with short clubs while he was trying to regain possession of his dog "Beauty."

Preliminary to his suit for damages Dr. Clemens caused the arrest of his assailants, and they were arraigned today before Magistrate Furlong in the Myrtle Avenue Court. Both were held in $200 bail to observe the peace.

The doctor and "Beauty," a heavily built bull terrier, were passing the Jones' store, at No. 306 Brooklyn avenue, when the dog's attention was attracted by the cackling of hens in the yard adjoining. A six-foot fence surrounded the yard, but there was a hole in one part of it near the ground, and "Beauty" scrambled in pursuit of the hens.

The doctor scolded the fence and caught his pet as he was in the act of demolishing two Brahmas, peacocks. Through the doctor's intentions were to protect the fowl the Joneses did not view the matter in the same light. They rushed upon him, threw him to the ground and proceeded to beat him with sticks. The doctor managed to remove "Beauty" from the scene of hostilities by throwing him over the fence, but he himself received several severe bruises and wounds at the hands of the irate father and son.

"Who Can Cure Asthma?" asked Mr. P. Langford, of 222 East 95th St., New York.

"I was told that asthma was incurable, and as different doctors and medicines had all failed to cure me, I began to believe this myself."

"My disease was near consumption. In fact, many thought that I had consumption, as I spit blood, had night sweats, chills and fever, and was getting so weak I could not sleep or work."

"My breath was daily getting shorter, my strength and flesh were fast leaving me, and I was indeed a pitiable sight when I applied to the Koch Lung Cure, at 48 West 22d St., New York."

"But they have cured me, and I again feel strong and well and my life of pain and suffering has been turned to joy and comfort."

"I invite any one to call and see for himself. I know from experience that the Koch healing oil vapors, that go directly into the lungs, will cure asthma and consumption."

"I have tested the treatment, and it has cured me. My neighbors and friends will prove the truth of my statement."

Mr. P. LANGFORD, 222 East 95th St., New York.

ACTRESS WOULD DIVORCE ACTOR.

Mrs. Arthur Daly Accuses Her Husband of Misconduct with an Unknown.

In her suit for divorce against Arthur Daly, who is playing an engagement at the Bijou Theatre, Mrs. Mary Blythe Daly was to-day allowed a weekly alimony of $30 and a counsel fee of $75 by Justice Leventritt in the Supreme Court. Mrs. Daly is also engaged at stage work in this city. She instituted her proceedings on statutory grounds.

It is alleged in the declaration that the defendant was guilty of misconduct at the Bartholdi Hotel Oct. 1 with a person unknown to the complainant. A date for the trial has not yet been fixed. Mr. and Mrs. Daly have one child, a boy, about four years old.

Barred Side by Side.

Side by side in Trinity churchyard, Willet Coles Ward and his wife, Elizabeth Fowler Warner Ward, who had been married fifty years, were laid to rest yesterday. Mr. Ward, once a well-known importer of fruits, died Sunday at his home, No. 318 West Ninety-first street, from pneumonia. Mrs. Ward was struck with the same disease while nursing her husband and did not know of his death when she succumbed to the attack on Tuesday.

THEORIES ABOUT FOOD.

Also a Few Facts on the Same Subject.

We hear much nowadays about health foods and hygienic living, about vegetarianism and many other fads along the same line.

Restaurants may be found in the larger cities where no meat, poultry or coffee is served and the food is in its natural state. Arguments and theories galore advanced to prove that meat was never intended for human stomachs, and almost make us believe that our sturdy ancestors who lived four score years in robust health were grossly ignorant of the laws of health.

Our forefathers had other things to do than formulate theories about the food they ate. A warm welcome was extended to any kind from bacon to asparagus.

A healthy appetite and common sense are excellent guides to follow in matters of diet, and a mixed diet of grains, fruits and meat is undoubtedly the best.

As compared with grains and vegetables, meat furnishes the most nutriment in highly concentrated form, and is digested and is assimilated more quickly than vegetables and grains.

Dr. Julius Remmon on this subject says: "Nervous persons, people run down in health and of low vitality should eat meat and plenty of it. If the digestion is too feeble at first it may be easily corrected by the regular use of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets after each meal. Two of these excellent tablets taken after dinner will digest several thousand grains of meat, eggs or other animal food in three hours, and no matter how weak the stomach may be, no trouble will be experienced if a regular practice is made of using Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, because they supply the pepsin and diastase necessary to perfect digestion, and every form of indigestion will be overcome by their use."

That large class of people who come under the head of nervous dyspeptics should eat plenty of meat and insure its proper digestion by the daily use of a safe, harmless digestive remedy, Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, composed of the natural digestive principles, pepsin, diastase, fruit acids and salts, which actually perform the work of digestion. Cheap cathartic medicines, masquerading under the name of dyspepsia cures, are useless for indigestion, as they have absolutely no effect upon the actual digestion of food.

Dyspepsia in all its many forms is simply a failure of the stomach to digest food, and the sensible way to relieve the trouble and cure the dyspepsia is to make daily use at meal time of a preparation like Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, which is indorsed by the medical profession, and is known to contain active digestive principles.
